REBELS LEAVE ONE CAMP AND SEIZE ANOTHER

No Damage at Aguada, but Bandits Threaten to Come Back.

SEIZE CORONA CAMP

American Government Demands Citizens be Given Protection.

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 29.—Mexican rebels who seized the Aguada camp of the Cortez Oil company in Tampico region Sunday, holding the property and 40 American employees for 15,000 pesos ransom, withdrew on Monday without damage to the property or injury to the employees but with the threat to return, Consul Shaw at Tampico today advised the state department.

The department received a later message, however, which said the same rebels yesterday seized a camp of the La Corona Oil company, a Dutch-British concern, in the same vicinity and were holding 85 employees including six Americans.

The dispatch did not indicate whether the ransom had been paid in the case of the Aguada camp which is an American owned concern. On the strength of the state department directed the embassy in Mexico City to make new demands on the Mexican government for the protection of the American employees of the Dutch-British company.

Wilson Advocates Convict Labor to Build Good Roads

PAULS VALLEY, OKLA. June 29. (Special)—Using of Oklahoma's "trusty" prisoners upon state highway construction instead of confining them with a class of hardened criminals, thereby causing them to become "reapers" in the category of crime was suggested here last night by R. H. Wilson, state superintendent of schools, in an open air address. He would serve the double purpose, he declared, of developing an excellent system of state roads and of effecting the laying reformation of those who have fallen within the coils of law. Mr. Wilson asserted that Colorado has set the entire nation an admirable example of prison reform by producing through prison labor alone more than 3,000 miles of hard surface roads in the last thirteen years and this was in spite of the fact that Colorado prison rolls have included only about a third of the number in Oklahoma penal institutions during the same period. "It is not the severity of punishment but the certainty of it that will reduce crime," Wilson said in urging law enforcement and a more discriminate use of the parole and parole powers vested in the governor.

After a long overland jump which included speaking engagements in three towns within a single afternoon Wilson reached Wednesday exactly in the middle mark in a nine week's personal speaking tour which will cover the state. On July 4 he will speak at Elk City and Cheyenne.

LOANS GRANTED FOR MARKETING

War Finance Board Backs Cotton and Wheat Marketing Associations.

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 29.—Approval of four applications for loans to assist in financing the orderly marketing of cotton and wheat aggregating $16,500,000 was announced today by the war finance corporation.

The applications approved were from: "Oklahoma, Cotton Growers Co-operative association, $6,000,000; Arkansas Cotton Growers Co-operative association, $7,500,000; Oklahoma Wheat Growers association, $2,500,000; and Texas Wheat Growers association, $5,000,000.

RURAL SCHOOLS OF COUNTY PREPARING TO OPEN

According to information given out by the county superintendent's office, the rural schools of the county will begin to open next month. The exact date of opening will be governed in each community by existing crop conditions at the time. In those communities where conditions are permissible, schools will begin immediately after the first of the month. As for the fall terms, it is stated, a sufficient number of competent teachers is to be counted on, and a large number of teaching contracts are already in the office.

GOOD PROGRESS ON PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH BUILDING

Work on the Presbyterian church is proceeding rapidly. The basement, 62x108 feet in dimensions, is almost excavated and part of the foundation has been poured. All of it will be in by the end of the week, then forms will be set for the basement walls. In order to get a solid foundation that will never give way the trenches were dug to a depth of three to five feet.

TRYING TO SAVE ORIENT RAILROAD

Chairman of I. C. C. Asks Three Governors to Consider Situation.

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 29.—Chairman McCord of the Interstate Commerce Commission today wired the governors of Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas, asking them to meet with the commission in Washington on July 12 for a conference on the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad, which now is in the hands of a receiver and is threatened with complete suspension of operation after July 1.

Representatives of the railroad commissioners of three states were all expected to attend the meeting. Chairman McCord's message to Governor Allen of Kansas, Robertson of Oklahoma, and Neff of Texas, declared "the Orient railroad situation is so serious that vigorous steps must immediately be taken if it is to be continued in operation."

The railroad operates through 26 counties of Texas, eight counties of Oklahoma and passes through rich farming territory of Kansas. It has been in the hands of a receiver for over one year, and tentative proposals for an advance of two million dollars from the government have been made.

Robertson May Not Attend
OKLAHOMA CITY, June 29.—Governor J. B. A. Robertson said today that it is uncertain at present whether he will be able to attend a conference July 12 at Washington with the governors of Texas and Kansas, called by Chairman McCord of the Interstate Commerce Commission to consider the situation of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad. The governor said that if other office duties permitted, he would make an effort to be there.

In connection with the list of teachers selected to teach in the city schools of Ada this fall, some interesting statistics are given out from the City Superintendent's office: Seventy-two and two-tenths percent of the teachers in the Ada Highschool hold degrees from institutions recognized by the North Central Association. All meet state requirements and requirements of the North Central Association. The average for all teachers in the ward schools who are graduates of normal schools and hold life certificates is sixty-five percent. The certification of all teachers in ward schools ranks First Grade State or higher. The average teaching experience for teachers in ward schools is six and two-tenths years.

REBELS REFUSE TO MAKE TERMS; FIRING RESUMED

(By the Associated Press)
LONDON, June 29.—Fresh terms were offered the insurgents in Four Courts building in Dublin today, says a Dublin dispatch to the Evening News, but they refused to surrender and after two hours of delay, firing was resumed.

The early evacuation of the strong hold is expected, however, as the water and lights have been cut off.

FIRST STEP TO END COAL STRIKE

Operators Accept Invitation of President to Meet Union Officials.

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 29.—Secretary of Labor Davis announced today that bituminous and anthracite coal operators had accepted the invitation extended last night by President Harding to meet at the white house Saturday with United Mine Workers officials to devise methods upon which negotiations for the settlement of the coal strike can be initiated.

Acceptance Received.
WASHINGTON, June 29.—White House officials at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon said acceptances had been received from both bituminous and anthracite coal operators and from all union officials who had responded up to that hour to President Harding's invitation for a joint meeting at the White House Saturday of the two parties participating in the national coal strike.

SPECIAL GRAND JURY CALLED TO INVESTIGATE RIOT

(By the Associated Press)
MARION, Ill., June 29.—A special grand jury on July 10 will begin investigating the massacre last week on non-union miners by union striking miners near Herrin, Circuit Judge Hartwell definitely announced today.

Simultaneously with the announcement, Coroner McGowan, began an evacuation of the Southern Illinois Coal company's strip mine, where the non union men were employed, following rumors that a number of bodies were buried at the mine.

WILL PUSH BOLL WEEVIL FIGHT

Conferences Will Be Held in Many Localities Next Week.

At a meeting of business men held Wednesday afternoon and this morning it was decided to open an aggressive campaign against the boll weevils Wednesday, July 5. The county was divided among four leaders who will devote three days to demonstrating methods of fighting the pest, especially by means of the Dial system. Mr. Dial has already covered much of the county and this will almost complete the first round.

ORDERS ISSUED BY OFFICERS OF 6 UNIONS TODAY

Officers of Unions Accede to Sentiment Expressed by Majority Vote.

SAY ONE CHANCE LEFT

Union Leaders Say Meeting of R.R. Executives Must Make Concessions.

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO, June 29.—Strike orders by the six crafts presidents of the railroad shopmen's organization were sent out today to the general chairmen representing 400,000 men, authorizing a strike at 10 a. m. July 1 "on all railroads and Pullman shops in the United States."

Letters of instructions regarding the progress and conduct of the strike were being prepared at general headquarters here today and were to be mailed out tonight.

"The issue is clean cut with no strings attached," said B. M. Jewell, president of the railroad union's department of the American Federation of Labor. "It is up to the railroad executives at their meeting today. They can stop this strike today or tomorrow, but after Saturday at 10 o'clock it is all off."

"The telegram of the union heads to Cuyler is the union's last word."

The general committee of 90 general chairmen today were on their way to their home districts to take active charge of the strike. A sub-committee remained at headquarters to direct operations.

While union heads refused to discuss the strike call, it was said a statement would be issued later in the day. No provisions for calling off the strike, after an acceptable settlement has been made, it was understood, but instructions being prepared for district leaders will include such arrangements later, on telegraphic information.

Members of the association of railroad executives under the chairmanship of T. Dewitt Cuyler, to whom the shop-crafters letter was addressed, were to meet here today in response to a call issued several weeks ago, but th program of their conference was not announced.

The text of the strike order follows:

"In compliance with your strike vote, all shopcraft employees below the rank of general foremen, are hereby granted saction to suspend work at 10 a. m. July 1, on all railroads and Pullman shops in the United States. Notify all outside points. Wire number responding and number remaining at work."

"Signed: William H. Johnson, International Association of Machinists"

"J. W. Kline, International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers and Helpers of America."

"J. A. Franklin, International Brotherhood of Boiler Makers, Iron-shop Builders and Helpers of America."

"J. J. Hynes, Amlagated Sheet Metal Workers International Alliance."

"Jams F. Noonan, International Brotherhood of Electric Workers."

"Martin F. Ryan, Brotherhood of Railroad Carmen of America."

Train Service Men Will Remain.

CLEVELAND, June 29.—Engineers, firemen and trainmen members of the railroad brotherhoods with headquarters in this city, will continue to perform their duties and will not take the places or do the work of any railroad employee on strike in connection with the strike of shopcrafts called for Saturday morning, chiefs of the brotherhood's advising members of their organizations today.

Warren S. Stone, president of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers, and William H. Lee, president of Brotherhood of Trainmen, issued instructions to this effect to all members of their organizations.

In the absence from Cleveland of W. S. Carter, president of the brotherhood of locomotive firemen and enginemnen, officials of the union headquarters here announced that they had agreed with President Stone to send a joint message of instruction to enginemnen and firemen.

OH, SHUCKS!

We had just about made up our mind that the world was getting better, that tolerance of others' pleasure was not an unknown quantity, that the milk of human kindness was running hither and thither, that all in all we were approaching that blessed state wherein troubles are few and worries light. And now comes Blackwell, Oklahoma, and destroys our blissful state. That city, imagine it if you can, has decreed that girls must not wade barefoot.

We have seen mean men; we have seen bigoted men; but it is hard to conceive of a man who would object to a young girl in her teens wading barefooted in a pool of water. It reminds us of a statement we saw once "the nastiness is all in the mind."

Do away with the barefoot boy and girl and we do away with much of the best in literature. The barefoot boy has been made a hero. To restrict him to shoes in summer time is about as mean as imprisoning a mocking bird, or some other wild bird which nature never intended to be molested. To develop naturally is to go barefooted.

The man who would force girls to wear stockings while wading must never have read "Maud Muller." He must not know that many of the women of our land never wore shoes in the summer except when they went to church. Women like Lincoln's mother went barefooted and it did not prevent their bringing into the world some of its greatest men.

We are about to overdo things. All this talk about the waywardness of the young boys and girls is silly. The styles are just as good now as they have ever been. The girls are as pure and the boys as manly. There have been wayward boys and girls ever since the forbidden fruit was taken in the Garden of Eden. There will be waywardness as long as boys and girls and men and women have the desire, the spirit of adventure, the love of daring that now and always have been part of the human race.

Let's have some sense. If the girls want to take off their shoes and stockings and wade in a wading pool in a public park, they should be allowed to do so. To show one's foot is no more vulgar than showing one's hand. As well say they must wear gloves on the street.

ADA'S PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The records of the city superintendent's office indicate that the city schools of Ada have advanced rapidly in recent years in the matter of qualifications of the teachers. Every teacher in the system holds a first grade certificate or better, most of them are at least normal graduates and a large percentage hold degrees from recognized colleges. Not many years ago the ones with degrees were few and far between and a number did not hold first grade certificates. The schools have advanced steadily until Ada now ranks among the first towns in the state in the matter of recognition of high school work. The school system of a town is a pretty fair index to the spirit of the people. Supt. Hickman and his co-workers are to be congratulated on the progress made here.

ARE WE IMPROVING?

It has been a long time since Marcus Aurelius trod this earth. Empires have risen and fallen. Kings have died and thrones crumbled into dust. Great republics have risen; some have stood and others gone down. Churches and schools by the millions have been established and have taught logic, science and languages. We have learned how to stay under water, how to fly above the earth and how to travel on the surface at speeds the ancient Romans would never have believed. And yet have we improved one particle on this bit of wisdom, Marcus Aurelius uttered?

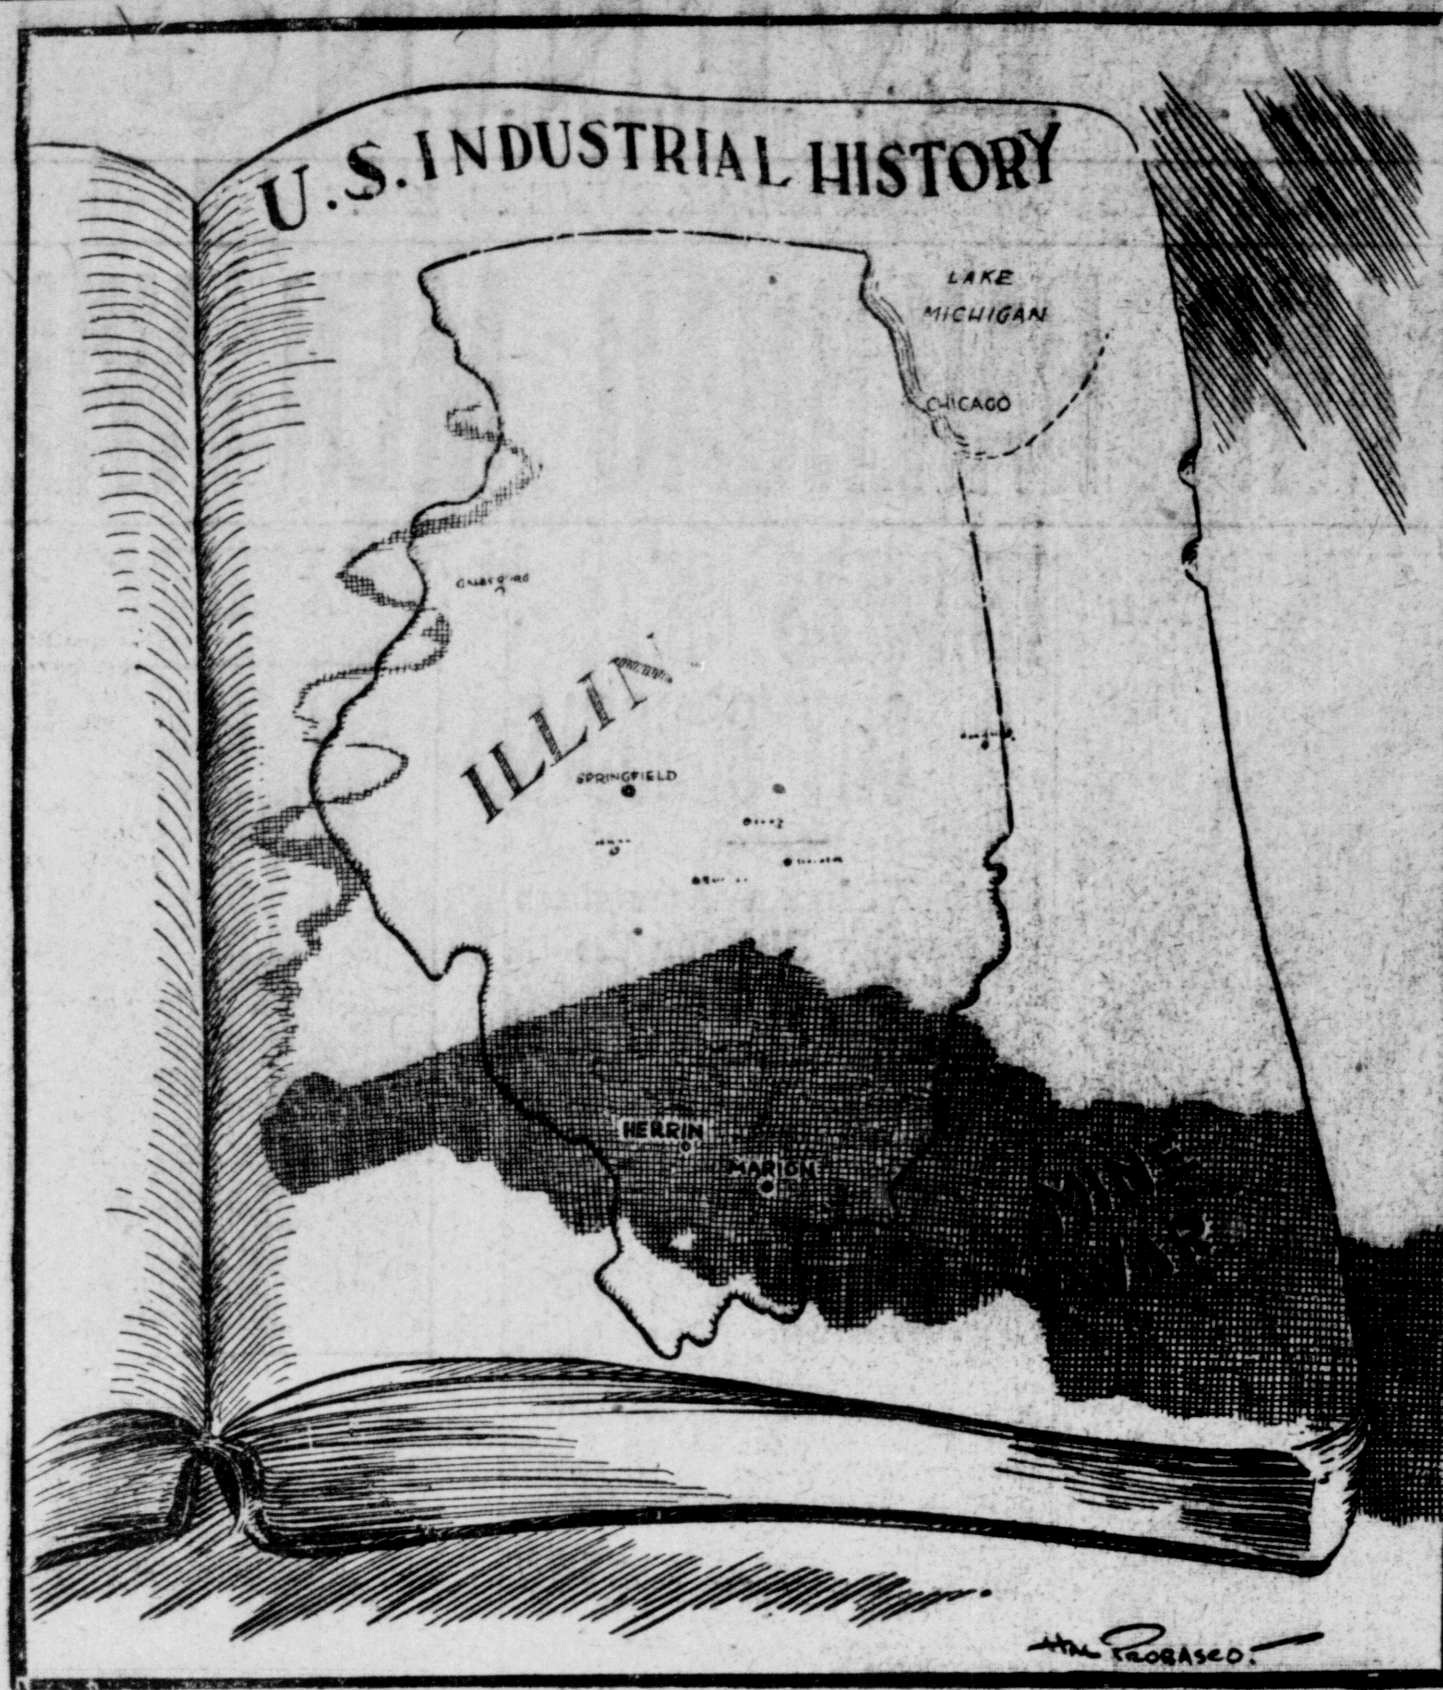

"If any man can convince me that I do not think or act aright, gladly will I change; for I search after truth, by which man never was harmed. But he is harmed who abideth on still in his deception and ignorance."

The refusal of the officers in Williamson County, Illinois to enforce the law or to take any steps toward apprehending the murderers of the working miners, only emphasize the importance of all communities being careful in whom they place responsibility. Only men who are known to be upright and unafraid of losing their lives or mindful of their political futures should be entrusted with enforcing the law. At this time when human passions run strong, only level headed and strong believer in enforcing the law should be in power.

No child ever liked to be told that there is no Santa Claus, but some people take a delight in telling them that the old fellow is only a myth. Now comes J.M. Thoburn, historian of Oklahoma, and spoils a pretty romance of the early days of the Indian Territory by declaring that the story that Jefferson Davis wooed and won the daughter of General Taylor at Fort Gibson is only a Santa Claus tale; that the house pointed out as the Davis home was in reality a hospital. The hard hearted iconoclast!

The Russian government is making desperate efforts to secure a big line of foreign credits. Evidently the leaders have found that a nation no more than an individual can live to itself.

Martians and Spirits.

(Chickasha Express)

With Mars only about 40,000 miles from the earth, Marconi, the inventor of the wireless, is trying to get signals from that planet. True, the most powerful wireless outfits yet built on this planet are capable of sending messages only an infinitesimal fraction of that distance, but Marconi hopes that Martians can do better. That is, if there are any Martians.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle announces that he is installing a complete radio outfit in his London home, for use in his psychic investigations. He feels confident that by means of radio he will be able to communicate with the spirit world.

It might simplify things if the "spirit world" happened to be Mars. Then Marconi and Doyle could work together on the job.

Scoffing is easy, and it is also futile. Nobody can say with assurance that either of these gifted men is wrong. But certainly the chances of their being wrong are great. The least that can be expected of the public is an open mind, a willingness to be "shown." There is a long chain of "ifs" in both cases.

As to Mexican Recognition.

(Fort Worth Star-Telegram)

The Wall Street Journal points out that no kind of an agreement on the Mexican debt between the government of Mexico and American bankers can bring recognition of Mexico by the United States government any nearer. It requires that the obstacles that stand in the way of recognition shall be removed. It says:

"Mexico can adopt any kind of constitution she likes, and enact any statutes she chooses. But it is the duty of every government to protect its citizens according to the practices of civilization. Constitutional and statutory provisions that do violence to the civilized world's ideas of right and wrong are trouble breeders which sooner or later will lead to grave international complications. It is the part of prudence to avoid all such at the very beginning."

"The United States does not ask Mexico to change one line of her constitution or repeal a single law. It does not feel that it has the right to ask such a thing of a sister republic. But we have the right to ask that Mexico shall by treaty provide that the citizens of the United States will have equal protection before the laws of that country. Until that assurance is given we can not consistently accord recognition. Mr. Hughes believes that the way to secure cordial relations is to make this fact clear, at the outset. Nothing short of the guarantees of a treaty can do this."

The reasons for withholding recognition have been clear and simple from the first, and the administration has the support of all right thinking people in its stand. So long as the obstacles are not removed the present situation will continue.

The Demand For Education.

(British Whig, Toronto)

During the past decade and especially since the close of the war, the demand on our schools and universities has perceptibly increased. There has been evinced a yearning, yet, a demand for education that has taxed the capacity of the public to provide. Reports indicate that the graduates from our public and private schools, from our colleges and other higher institutions, will be far more numerous this summer than ever. This increase measures the advancement of higher education in one generation. It is proof of the increasing desire for scholastic training and the ability of those having such ambition to meet the demands. It is a fact well known to those who have been called on to finance a college education, that the cost now is several times what it was in the period around 1916, yet there are more than five times as many young men and women receiving degrees. Tuition is much higher, cost of living is far greater and the incidentals are vastly more numerous than when the parents went to school. Possibly the proportion of those eager for college training is not greater but the ability to secure it certainly is more widely diffused.

The situation indicates that there is less disposition to take children out of school and put them to work ere the course is completed. This of itself is evidence of bettered financial conditions. A greater proportion of the parents are able to do without the earnings of their children than formerly. Thus the situation is indicative, not only of a better trained youth, but also of a more substantial parenthood than existed a generation ago. The success of democracy depends on intelligence, and it is a guarantee of stability that higher schooling is increasing in such degree.

NORMAN—The indoor rifle range being installed in the R. O. T. C. armory at the University of Oklahoma will be completed before next fall, according to Capt. R. T. Guthrie, who is in charge of the unit during the summer. Rifle practice will be carried on with .22 calibre rifles weighing the same as the regulation army style. A new basketball court, larger than the present one will be constructed at another end of the armory.

Elephants of Ceylon are unusually intelligent.

The Former Convict

By HENRIETTA LEE

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

Howland faced Morton in the living-room of the Darrows' house. It was a moment Morton was never to forget as long as he lived.

"Morton," he said with a sneer, "I'm wise to you. I know your past—all of it. It may interest you to know that I've had a special agent on your trail for some time. You're an ex-convict."

"Five years ago you were sent to the penitentiary for twelve months, for forging a check for two thousand dollars. I'm the only person here who knows it. Take my advice and clear out of Staples, and—take your past with you."

Morton was acutely conscious of everything. Outside, on the porch, sat May Darrow, the only child of the rich banker, and his wife who had been Morton's best friends since he settled in the village to start a law practice which had begun to make him prosperous. None of the folks knew his criminal record.

It had been the temptation of a young man acutely pressed for money. Desperate, he had forged the check. He had taken his medicine. He had settled in Staples resolved to live down the past. He had lived it down.

And May had just promised to become his wife.

Now all that dream was shattered. Howland, the rich manufacturer, had been May's suitor for years; he was mad about her, and unscrupulous as he was, Morton knew that he would show him no mercy.

"The alternative, as I understand?" Morton began, speaking in a voice whose icy coldness surprised him.

"Is ruin and complete exposure," answered Howland brutally. "You can never marry May Darrow. What do you think these honest people would think, if they knew that you were a jail-bird?"

"I thought you would be man enough to play fair, Howland—" Morton began.

"You guessed wrong, then. Which is it to be?"

Before either could say any more Darrow came along the hall.

"Come outside, folks!" he said cheerily. Then, glancing at their faces, "Nothing wrong, is there?"

Morton grew idly contained. "I believe Mr. Howland wishes to make a statement to you about me," he said. Howland's face grew dark with blood.

"All right, you fool!" he shouted. "That's so, Mr. Darrow, and I'll make it outside, in the presence of your wife and daughter!"

Darrow's face indicated a certain amount of contempt as he answered: "By all means, Mr. Howland, if you are sure it is proper for them to hear it."

"Oh, I'm sure enough!" sneered the manufacturer, following the others onto the stoop.

May and her mother sat in the porch chairs. The night was brilliant with fireflies. Only a short half-hour ago Morton had told May of his love, and had learned that it was returned. Now that the dream was shattered, it was astonishing how calm he felt.

"Margaret, my dear, Mr. Howland has a communication to make to us all, which he says is of importance," said Darrow.

No one knew how Darrow would take anything, but every one knew that he was as straight as a die; that he would never tolerate dishonesty. "The statement I have to make," said Howland furiously, "concerns our precious friend Morton, here. You think he's everything that a gentleman ought to be, that he's worthy to enter your house, don't you? Well, he isn't! He's an ex-convict. He served a year in the state penitentiary for forgery. I don't know what else he's done."

"Is this statement correct, Mr. Morton?" asked Darrow coldly.

"It's perfectly true," answered Morton. "I'd hoped to live it down. But I guess it's followed me here. I've done wrong hiding it."

"Very wrong under the circumstances," said Darrow.

"But it was my intention to tell you before—well, that's all I need say now. Perhaps you can't understand how a man feels when he's restored to the society of his fellow-men after what happened to me. However, it's all true, and—good night!"

"One moment!" said Darrow, raising his hand. "It may interest you gentlemen to know that what you, Mr. Howland, consider news is—a mere's nest. Every one of any consequence in Staples has been aware of these facts ever since Mr. Morton came to live here."

"People are kinder than is generally supposed. There is no one who would have taunted Mr. Morton, or told him, or not trusted him. And that includes myself—and my family."

"Morton, come back! Good-night, Mr. Howland. Morton—" he grasped him by the arm—"I believe my daughter wants to talk to you."

A Brave Performer. "I understand," said the drummer, "that Plute Peté isn't allowed in Crimmon Gulch any more."

"No," answered Cactus Joe. "The boys nud rather not have him around. He held four aces three times the same evening."

"That was luck!"

"No. It wasn't even skill. It was courage."

SOCIETY

Pendleton-Clark.
Mr. Lawrence L. Pendleton, of Beggs, Oklahoma, and Miss Arla Ruth Clark, of this city, were united in marriage Wednesday afternoon, at the home of the bride, 136 East 10th street, by Rev. H. M. Woods of the First Christian church. Miss Grace Dial was the bridesmaid and Miss Eunice McNew the maid of honor. Ferns, roses and sweet peas comprised the decorations.

The groom is a well-known oil and cattleman of Beggs. The bride has many friends in Ada, and is a graduate of Ada High school. Mrs. Frank Burd, of Okmulgee, a sister of the bride, was an out-of-town guest to the wedding.

Mrs. Parker Entertains.
Mrs. A. W. Parker entertained yesterday afternoon at her home on South Cherry from 4 to 6 o'clock in honor of the sixth birthday of her little daughter, Elizabeth.

Games, in which the twelve small boys and girls who attended, participated, were the chief enjoyment of the afternoon. Refreshments were served, birthday gifts presented directly following the conclusion of the play.

Musical Recital.
Mrs. Edson MacMillan will present a group of intermediate piano pupils in a recital at the First Baptist church Friday evening, beginning at 8:30.

She will be assisted by Mrs. Gaar, soprano, and Mr. Stephens, tenor, and Miss Ruth Johnson, reader. Cordial invitation to attend is extended to the public.

Renick-Chaffin.
Friends were given a surprise here yesterday afternoon when Miss Alberta Chaffin was quietly married to R. D. Renick, both of this city, by Justice H. J. Brown at his home. The couple will make their home here.

Clubs Postpone Meetings.
Nearly every women's club in the city, including bridge clubs, social organizations and church auxiliaries, have announced their intention of postponing until cooler weather all social gatherings.

Miss Kate Draper, who was to have arrived in Ada Monday and start her classes in voice, was delayed. She arrived last evening, however, and began her class work today.

RISKS LIFE TO FILM TRESTLE SCENE IN "SATURDAY NIGHT"

Leatrice Joy, Leading Woman, Has Narrow Escape as Cecil B. DeMille Picture Shows.

Leatrice Joy and Jack Mower narrowly escaped death several times in the filming of an automobile accident episode in "Saturday Night," Cecil B. DeMille's latest Paramount picture, which will be the attraction at the McSwain Theatre next Monday and Tuesday. But the narrow escape came when Miss Joy stumbled accidentally and fell on the railroad trestle a hundred feet above the ground.

In this episode Miss Joy and Mr. Mower attempt to cross a railroad trestle in an automobile only to be trapped mid-way across by an approaching electric train. In their frantic efforts to escape they rush for the distant end of the trestle. Realizing that this is impossible, Mower was to force Miss Joy to clamber over the edge of the trestle with him where the pair would hang suspended while the train rushed above them, scrapping the automobile.

While filming the scene in which the trapped pair attempt to outrun the train, Miss Joy stumbled over one of the ties and fell, rolling within a few inches of the edge of the trestle. Dizzy from constraint, work at that height and surprised by the fall, she was powerless to help herself. Only good fortune saved her from falling to certain death. Although the stumble was purely accidental, Mr. DeMille retained the scene in the picture on the ground that it was absolute realism. Conrad Nagel, Edith Roberts, Julie Pay and Theodore Roberts have important roles.

Obituary.
Walter Elbert Brinlee, the 16 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Brinlee of 416 East Eighth street, died at the family home Tuesday night at 12 o'clock. Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon at 3:30. Rev. C. C. Morris was in charge. Interment took place in Rosedale cemetery. Following is a verse written by a friend in memory of the Brinlee child: We had a little treasure once, He was our joy and pride. We loved, ah perhaps too well, For soon he slept—and died. All is dark within our dwelling, And lonely are our hearts today, For the one we loved so dearly, From us has passed away.

A Jade Green Organdie Trimmed in Pale Yellow

WOMAN'S INSTITUTE Fashion Service

By MARY BROOKS PICKER

HISTORY of early centuries shows the little miss an exact duplicate of her mother or older sister. Modern fashions subtly show similarity of silhouette, but, in addition, this season suggest that the colors for wee folks be practically the same as the color harmonies expressed by grown-ups.

Tucks one inch deep ornament the front panel of pale yellow organdie and give a finish that is entirely pleasing; while the bias jade green ruffles help to blend the generous panel into the dress. The back of the blouse is plain, the opening being placed at the left side front in regular grown-up fashion. The blouse, the short skirt, and the panel express the youthfulness so much valued in frocks for young folks.

Other color combinations that may be used for this model are rose and cream, yellow and white, blue and corn color, and orchid and cream.

NEWSNOTES FROM MOVIELAND

The far-famed May Yohe, once Lady Frances Hope and possessor of the famous Hope diamond, has given up the tearoom that she has been running in New York and is about to do the inevitable.

Question: Now, children, if you have had big stories of every kind published about you in all the newspapers, what is the inevitable?

Answer: You go to the movies. That is just what May Yohe is about to do. It is said that she has signed a contract calling for a salary of $25,000 annually and she will star in a feature which will depict her own life. May once decided to write the story of her life, but later thought better of it, remarking that "It would quake the world and might bring me too many libel suits."

Perhaps when this same life is put on the screen the careful censors will edit out libel suits and quakes and we will see Miss Yohe in a Pollyanna part.

Western Nations to Resume Payment of Refund to China

(By the Associated Press)

PERKIN, May 22.—The Bureau of Revenues reports that a recommendation has been received from Japan, Great Britain, Italy, France and Portugal, that the Boxer indemnity money, payments upon which will be resumed this year, might be used for educational purposes following the example set by the United States. The money has already been remitted in part for this purpose by the United States, and the debt with Russia, Germany, and Austria has been canceled so that there has been a strong movement in the other countries still collecting this revenue to return the money to China in some beneficial way. The remission of this debt is not by any means assured but the first payments which will be again resumed, the five year holiday granted as a result is great hope among the enlightened authorities that the money may be used for purposes helpful to China.

The Bureau of Revenues in speaking of the suggestion that the money should be used entirely for educational work seems to feel that there are other needs perhaps more urgent and suggests that only one third be devoted to educational, another third to be development of industries, and the remaining third to the government administrative ex-

Of the thousands of claims being handled by the American Legion and the Red Cross for the state Relief Fund for destitute disabled ex-service men of the World War, fully three-fourths of those who describe a disability which should entitle them to compensation are not receiving compensation from the Veterans' Bureau.

This indicates that the men are uninformed as to their rights to draw compensation for disabilities resulting from services during the World War, that they have neglected or failed to file claims; if informed, or that the Veterans' Bureau has failed to provide compensation payments for them.

In order to properly inform these men as to their rights, information concerning compensation has been compiled by State Headquarters of the American Legion, which will be forwarded by the American Legion and Red Cross to every man who has been aided by a payment from the Relief Fund. This information shows how and where claims for compensation should be filed and offers aid of all Legion posts in preparing and filing claims for the men.

State Headquarters has been informed that the National Military Affairs Committee of the American Legion has secured the introduction and passage of an act to extend the time limit for the award of medals of honor, Distinguished Service Medals, etc., until two years from April 7, 1922.

President Harding together with Senators and Representatives in Congress from Iowa have received copies of a resolution unanimously adopted at Davenport, Ia., by the Iowa bankers, favoring immediate enactment of the American Legion's adjusted compensation bill now before the Senate. ## What Shall We Do About It.

By Stratton D. Brooks,
President of the University of Oklahoma

(Reprinted from the Oklahoma School Herald of May, 1922.)

At a recent meeting of the College presidents of Oklahoma the chief topic of discussion was what could be done to provide adequately for the rapidly increasing numbers of young people seeking to secure a college education. The situation is clearly serious and the remedy not in sight.

Practically every college and university in America has now more students than can be satisfactorily taught with the buildings, equipment, and teaching force now provided. Every indication is that both public and endowed institutions will be confronted in the immediate future with a rapidly increasing horde of college students and at the same time with increasing difficulties in securing additional funds.

The phenomenal growth of high school attendance is nationwide. Because Oklahoma is a new state and has gone through the pioneer stage more rapidly than was the case in older states, the increase in high school graduates has been proportionately greater in this state than it has been in many others. This increase is only partially accounted for by increased population. It has in fact been much more rapid than the growth in population. In many cities of practically stationary population, the number of high school graduates has almost doubled in five years or even in three. Many smaller cities that had few or no graduates five years ago have graduating classes of twenty to twenty-five this year.

Not only is there a much larger body of students eligible for admission to college, but a much greater proportion of the high school graduates intend to seek a higher education. It is rare indeed, that less than fifty per cent of a high school graduating class does not enter college the first year, and from many schools eighty or ninety per cent so attend, while many others follow later after a year or two in which to earn the money to cover college expenses.

There is no reason to doubt that within three years there will be five thousand additional students annually seeking to enter Oklahoma colleges. These colleges are now crowded to their utmost capacity. Most of them have no additional room and those that can provide a few extra classes by using cellars and attics and by conducting classes, have not the funds with which to provide the additional teachers and equipment.

Most these students be turned away, and if so, where will they go? Conditions of the past that have made these pupils welcome in other state universities and in the endowed colleges of the East, are very similar to those in Oklahoma. State that is confronted with the possibility of excluding the children of its own citizens from the state schools, cannot well take care of students from another state, and such is the condition now confronting nearly every state university in America.

With most of the endowed colleges the situation is equally serious. A few of the stronger ones have been able to put through successful drives for a million or two, but in most cases the additional revenue has all been needed to maintain the colleges as they now are. And philanthropic contributors are so sick of the drives that the success of further ones is sure to be comparatively meager.

Many of these colleges have been compelled to establish a maximum limit to admissions and at the same time to raise tuition rates to a point prohibitive to all but the rich Oklahoma students who seek college education elsewhere will therefore find it increasingly difficult to find colleges worth attending that can admit them.

It is no wonder then that the college presidents are worried as to what to do about it. It is time that the parents of children who will graduate from high school within the next five years also began to take counsel as to possible remedies.

The alternatives clearly are either more money with which to provide additional buildings, equipment, and teachers, or the exclusion of a large portion of the applicants for admission to college.

Oklahoma, standing fourteenth among the states in per capita wealth, and seventh in the amount of federal income tax, undoubtedly has enough well-to-do citizens who can afford to endow adequately the private colleges in Oklahoma. Up to this time, however, the proportional contributions to education from this source are probably lower in Oklahoma than in any other state in the Union, nor is there any present indication of a change. The endowed colleges of Oklahoma secure even now, most of their funds from outside the state, a condition that was to be expected in early days, when Oklahoma was considered a field for missionary endeavor, but which cannot be expected to continue.

The situation in the state schools can be remedied by prompt action and without undue taxation if the public once clearly understands the importance of the problem and can thoroughly appreciate the fact that their state tax is a very minor part of a total tax that may be burdensome. Though Oklahoma is fourteenth in per capita wealth, it is thirty-sixth in the per capita amount spent for the state schools. Though we have more state schools than many states, the per capita cost of all of them is far below the per capita cost in most states having but two or three schools. It is local taxation and not state taxation that causes our tax bills to be high. It is an unfortunate fact that a large number of the most radical objectors to taxation for the state schools do not pay a dollar a year towards the support of all of them combined, as can be readily determined by examining the tax receipts.

In view of the foregoing conditions it seems clear that whatever the conditions of the past may be we should not at the present time discontinue an or the existing schools, but that their buildings and equipment should be made available for college work under some unified system of organization and control that will prevent duplication and institutional rivalry. By this means a partial alleviation of the shortage of buildings may be provided without additional cost. Many citizens who have advocated a fewer number of state schools have not had clearly in mind that the closing of one or more of them merely throws a greater burden on the others without any appreciable difference in cost.

We should not be ambitious to build up a few big institutions, but rather to have a sufficient number of good institutions to provide the sons and daughters of Oklahoma with an education equal to the best. I have confidence in the spirit and ideals of the citizens of Oklahoma and believe that once the situation is thoroughly understood the remedy will follow in due time; for the briefest consideration will show the undesirability, even the impossibility of taking a course that will close to thousands of our most ambitious young men and women the doors of opportunity that a college education offers.

GOOD SOAP FOR LESS THAN TWO CENTS A POUND

Make It At Home By This Easy Process—Takes Less Than 30 Minutes.

Nowadays, more and more women are doing as their mothers did and are making their own soap. If you have never tried it, you will be surprised to see how easy it is to make good soap, soft soap, hard soap or floating soap, just by using kitchen scraps and waste grease together with a can of Merry War Lye, the safe and sure soapmaker. In the old days when soap was made by the boiling process it took nearly all day to make a kettle of soap. Now it is hardly any work at all—requires no boiling—takes less than 30 minutes. Saves you money and gives you all the pure, clean soap you need for kitchen, laundry and all household purposes.

You will find simple directions for soapmaking on the label of every can of Merry War Lye—also many other recipes such as how to make lye hominy, how to soften water, how to make clothes washing easy, how to brighten cooking utensils, etc. Merry War Powdered Lye is also a wonderful cleaner and purifier for use about the home, barn, chicken house and outhouses. Comes in a convenient can with revolving sifting top that cannot come off, cannot get lost, seals tightly and preserves contents. It is economical to buy and easy to use.

Ask your dealer for Merry War Lye—be sure you get "Merry War"—the lye that has made good for 35 years.

MAY BE POSSIBLE TO COMMUNICATE WITH PLANETS

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 27.—It may not be entirely impossible to open wireless communication with worlds other than our own, says Dr. C. G. Abbott, assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution in its annual report for 1920 recently made public; but the cost would be immense.

If there are any other stars or planets inhabited by intelligent beings, and communication could be rendered possible with them what a fund of knowledge might be learned from them.

"If we could talk freely with intelligences existing on another world having history, social customs and laws, and religious faith developed absolutely independently from those of this world, our conversation would not only be of surpassing interest to science and the humanities," Dr. Abbott says, "but what a guide it might prove to statesmen and sociologists."

Great interest has been shown within late years in reports that wireless stations receiving signals which could come only from another world, he continues. However, the best information seems to be that the wireless indications referred to are merely disturbances introduced by solar or terrestrial causes as yet imperfectly understood, and of the work of intelligent beings trying to communicate with us. At the same time, Dr. Abbott declares, computations have been made which seem to make it within the limits of possibility that wireless communications might be exchanged with the nearer planets, if it were worth while doing so.

"Proposals have also been made from time to time," continues the scientist, "of communicating by searchlights or mirrors in the ordinary methods of heliographing. To me these latter proposals seem altogether too sanguine."

"Certainly for a planet like Venus which is almost wholly covered by the fogs the chance of a beam of sunlight or searchlight beams penetrating to the surface where it could be observed by the supposed inhabitants, notwithstanding the glare of their own atmosphere and the glare of the whole relatively immense surface of the earth as compared to the surface of the reflectors or searchlights employed, is quite beyond probability. If it were the case of communication with the moon, there would be little doubt but that it could be accomplished."

"If it were Mars or one of the still more distant planets that was being considered, there seems to be not the slightest probability of success by the use of lights."

"So far as we know, then, any communication which can be made with other intelligent beings, if there are any, must be by means of wireless telegraphy or some as yet undiscovered means of communication."

Children Making Long Journey From Jungles of Africa

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, June 27.—Basanga and Boskesi, aged two and a half years and fifteen months respectively, are making a 10,000 mile journey to California from their home at Mondombie, a Congo village within a day's distance from an insurgent tribe of cannibals, according to the children's missionary father, Dr. Ernest B. Pearson. These cannibals ate the Belgium soldiers they capture both to express their contempt for them and to show that it can be done. Basanga and Boskesi, whose Christian names are Mary and Paul, were born in a jungle-rimmed village and until they started on the three months journey to America neither remembered ever seeing another white child. Mary speaks Lunkudo, a Bantu dialect, as well as she does English, and Paul has learned no English as yet.

The children are viewing with little interest the things that they see on their trip. Automobile and trains are new means of torture for them, as a horse was the only means of conveyance known to them in the Belgium Congo. Their African names were given them by the natives, who according to their custom of calling parents by the names of the first child, dubbed Dr. and Mrs. Pearson as Asanga and Nyang, (Father of Mary and mother of Mary).

Mrs. Pearson said that the natives call all women missionaries "mama" as a mark of respect, but that some of the single women at first object to the honor. Pajamas are the latest style in street wear at Mondombie, she said.

A woman who left her husband in the Congo recently was punished according to Dr. Pearson, by being tied in the path of driver ants, which stung her terribly.

Dr. Pearson is a graduate of the University of Illinois College of Medicine. Mrs. Pearson, who was Miss Evelyn Utter of Covina, Cal., is descended from the Bullock and Viley families of Kentucky, and studied at Transylvania College, Lexington, Ky. and at Butler College and the College of Missions, both of Indianapolis, Ind. They serve under the disciples of Christ.

Why Wilson Is Winning

From all over the state comes continuous praise, commendation and pledge of support for R. H. Wilson. There are distinct outstanding reasons for these steady gains.

He is not appealing to faction nor arraying one class against another.

He is recognized as the candidate all can willingly support in the November election.

All will be glad to support him when nominated.

His manner of campaign receives unanimous approval and commendation.

His strength in all sections show that confidence which is the greatest factor to be considered in selecting the standard bearer.

Past political hi-jackers and designing politicians are not in his camp.

His strong personality and efficient, constructive public record, and his sympathy, and understanding of the people and their requirements inspire confidence among real men and women everywhere.

These are some of the reasons why Wilson is gaining every day.

These are the things that make him the choice of the people.

He is conducting a clean campaign. He will conduct a clean administration.

Democrat voters, men and women, it is worth your while to think over these things.

Japanese Council is for Ratification of Naval Treaty

(By the Associated Press)
TOKIO, June 29.—The privy council passed the naval treaty adopted at the Washington arms conference and submitted it today to the Prince Regent for ratification. The council's approval included the provision against poison gas and the clause restricting submarines. This court reporting for the council's investigation committee, said the committee found the ratio of ships for Japan was disadvantageous to the empire and requested the government to use greater care in the future. The committee of the privy council, however, found that the Japanese delegates at the Washington conference were at fault in failing to make better terms, from a spirit of respect for the Washington conference in its desire to maintain the world peace, the committee recommended ratification without amendment.

MONTHS OF SUFFERING

How a Baltimore Girl Recovered Her Health

Baltimore, Maryland.—"For several months I suffered with severe backache and general weakness. I could not sleep comfortably at night for pains in my back. I found your book at home one day and after reading it began at once to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had very good results and some of my girl friends are taking it now. You may use this letter to help other girls, as the letters in your book helped me."—ROSE WADNER, 3018 Roseland Place, Baltimore, Md.

That is the thought so often expressed in letters recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. These women know what they have suffered, they describe their symptoms and state how they were finally made well. Just plain statements, but they want other women to be helped. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine made from medicinal roots and herbs, and without drugs, to relieve the sickness women so often have, which is indicated by backache, weak feelings, nervousness, and no ambition to get anything done or to go anywhere. It has helped many women. Why not try it?

OIL PRODUCTION IN U. S. SHOWS A SLIGHT DECREASE

(By the Associated Press)
NEW YORK, June 29.—The American Petroleum Institute estimates that the daily average gross crude oil production for the United States for the week ending June 24, was 1,441,350 barrels, as compared with 1,445,700 barrels for the preceding week, a decrease of approximately 4,350 barrels. The estimated gross production of the mid-continent (light oil) field, including Oklahoma, Kansas, North Texas and Central Texas, North Louisiana, and Arkansas, for the week ended June 24, was 784,000 barrels as compared with 787,200 barrels for the preceding week, a decrease of 3,200 barrels. Oklahoma-Kansas showed an increase of 7,950 barrels.

WILL VILLA STAND BY HIS CONTRACT

Interest Centers Around Former Bandit Leader of Mexico.

(By the Associated Press)
MEXICO CITY.—Despite his repeated assurance that he is no longer a bandit but a gentleman farmer of the state of Durango, the movements of Francisco Villa are being closely watched in official circles here. To observers it is difficult to believe that this former guerrilla has accustomed himself to the routine of ranch life and is now finding his growing crops and lowing herds the contentment that a man of his tremendous nervous energy derived in the past from daring deeds of warfare.

Is Villa the staunch friend of the Obregon administration that his friends claim for him? Will Villa stay out of politics and play no part in the forthcoming congressional elections? In the event of a serious threat against Obregon's power will Villa rally his 4000 ranchers in behalf of the president or would he lead his men in a new revolution? These are the frequent questions of the street here and the answers are as varied as those who make reply.

The pacification of Villa is proclaimed by the friends of Provisional President de la Huerta as the one big achievement of his short administration in 1920. To secure the peace pact with the famous bandit it was necessary for the Mexican government to grant him an extensive tract of land on which his faithful followers numbering some 4000 might work and prosper. There was also a transfer of considerable cash which Villa said he needed to develop his new ranches. It is also understood that one of the stipulations of the agreement was that Villa was to stay out of politics.

Villa settled in the state Durango and the few persons who have visited his hacienda report that he is an enthusiastic farmer. Of late, however, stories have been creeping out of the north to the effect that furrowed fields and blooded dairy stock are commencing to pall and that to relieve the monotony, the captor of Columbus is mixing just a trifle in the state politics of Durango. Some reports are that he has been asked to run for governor and has consented, but persons close to the man deny the rumors. No matter what the facts, the uncertainty of Villa's action is causing considerable comment in the capital which within the past two months has been put on the qui vive several times by "authentic" statements that the Durango rancher was on his way to Mexico City to consult with his president. He has never arrived and there is small possibility that he will come.

All of which merely served to revive the months' old questioning—will Villa stand fast no matter what turmoil might arise in Mexico City. If one is to believe stories of Villa's heavy investments in oil drilling outfits and his rumored plans to rebuild a stockyard and packing house at Ciudad Juarez which his men destroyed several years ago, there is reason to think that the Cantillo farmer is just that and nothing more. On the other hand, visitors at the ranch say that the Canutillo arsenal is well supplied with arms and ammunition. But, as they say, Villa must arm himself to protect his ranch from bandits.

Many Ada Citizens Taking in Two-Day Picnic at Allen

More than twenty cars of Ada people, including the Ada Community Band, Ada Athletic Association baseball team, and citizens, left this morning for Allen where they will attend and participate in the big two-days celebration which opened there this morning.

Band men, composed chiefly of high school players, will remain in Allen until tomorrow evening. They will furnish the music for the picnic. Ada Athletic association baseball players will play the Allen team this afternoon, the game being free to all visitors.

Many other Ada people are expected to attend the celebration tonight and tomorrow. First reports from the picnic grounds were that large attendances to all games and to the picnic proper were expected. Many people, most of them from out-of-town, were in the east county town today to enjoy themselves. Allen reports state.

NEW STYLE AND MILLINERY SHOP WILL OPEN FRIDAY

Announcement was made today of the opening Friday of "La Vogue" Ada's newest ladies ready-to-wear and millinery shop, which is located in the building on West Main street formerly occupied by the Williams Fashion Shop.

Mrs. C. D. Price, who for the past four and one-half years has been employed as head saleslady for the Burk Style Shop, and Mrs. A. W. White, with three years experience as a milliner, are the new proprietors. They have returned from market, where a stock of goods in keeping with the announced policy of the firm was purchased.

A complete line of all ladies ready-to-wear will be carried. The ladies invite their friends to call tomorrow and be with them on their opening day.

Cucumbers contain approximately 90 percent water.

Thos. A. Edison Tells of Early Days of Radio Experiments

The radio telephone is one of the most spectacular of modern inventions.

Nothing about the radio phone, however, is more marvelous than the story of its beginning and its development.

The chain of events that produced the radio-phone began with the discovery by Thomas A. Edison of a thin white streak on an electric light globe. That was back in 1883. Allan L. Benson tells the story in the July number of a current Magazine.

While Thomas A. Edison's name is not popularly associated with radio developments, Mr. Benson rather suspected that the wizard of Menlo Park probably had something to do with the wireless marvel at some period in its history. He, therefore, proceeded to get the facts.

"It was in 1883," said Edison, while we were talking in his laboratory at Orange, N. J., "that I observed what scientists afterwards designated as the 'Edison effect'. Upon which the radio-phone is based. An 'effect' is a new phenomenon that cannot be explained by existing theories. While working on my carbon incandescent lamp, I observed that each bulb, after it had burned for some time, was blackened inside except for a thread-like streak opposite one leg of the filament."

"The streak of clear glass interested me because I could not understand it. So far as I knew, there was no reason why it should be there. As I studied it, I observed that the streak was always nearest to the leg of the filament that was connected with the positive side of the circuit. It was as if this leg were casting a shadow. I finally deduced that the negative leg of the filament was throwing off particles of carbon that blackened all of the interior of the bulb except the thin line on the opposite side which was shielded by the other leg of the filament."

Edison took out a patent for a wireless telegraph in 1891. A number of years before that he had taken out a patent on an electric valve without which no wireless instrument that is now in use would work. In his patent application, filed more than thirty years ago, Edison declared:

"I have discovered that if sufficient elevation be obtainable to overcome the curvature of the earth's surface and to reduce to the minimum the earth's absorption, electric telegraphing or signalling between distant points can be carried on by induction without the use of wires connecting such distant points. This discovery is especially applicable to telegraphing across bodies of water, thus avoiding the use of submarine cables, or for communicating between vessels at sea or on land; but it is also applicable to electric communication between distant points on land."

Being busy with the development of incandescent lighting, Mr. Edison sold his wireless patents to Marconi.

It would be as difficult to say who invented the radiophone now in popular at it would be to say who invented the automobile.

"It was built up," said Edison. "Lee DeForest probably had more to do than did any other one man with the development of wireless telephony. He introduced into the lamp between the plate and the filament a little sieve by means of which the rate of passage of the electrons may be controlled."

Edison pointed to a diagram of the little sieve and said: "It is a beautiful invention." It was plain from the way he said it that DeForest had done something that elicited his admiration. John J. Carty, chief engineer of the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, is the great technician of the radio-phone. He has taken the invention and made it work. He it was, who, in November, 1921, enabled crowds in New York, San Francisco, and every great city between these points, to hear President Harding's address as part of the ceremony at the tomb of the unknown soldier in Arlington.

Mr. Edison says that he believes the wireless telephone will have a profound influence upon American political campaigns. Future presidential candidates will not journey about the country but will speak to millions by wireless from their headquarters. I think the small orators will be driven out of business," Mr. Edison remarked.

Inasmuch as sound and light are both derived from electric waves differing only in frequency, Mr. Benson asked Edison if it were not conceivable that the radio might yet carry grand opera to prairie firesides where it could both be seen and heard.

"It is conceivable," he replied, "but there is nothing in scientific knowledge as it now stands to indicate that it will ever be done. There are 125,000,000 nerves that lead from the eye to the brain. If I could string 125,000,000 wires from here to New York." (We were talking in Edison's laboratory in Orange, N. J., remember, "we might be able to see New York from here.")

"The general public," says Mr. Benson, "always seem to sense a great invention."

When Edison invented the incandescent electric light, public interest in it was so great that the Pennsylvania Railroad ran excursion trains to Menlo Park. People flocked to see Edison's first electric engine. President Hayes sat up until 3:30 in the morning to hear Edison's first phonograph say, "Mary had a little lamb," and, "There was a little girl who had a curl, etc."

The same instinct is now directing public attention to the radio-telephone. The broadcasting of President Harding's speech at Arlington, in November, 1921, was the starting-point. The people of the Middle West were the first to sense the importance of the new device. A Detroit paper began broadcasting in January.

A month later New York City awoke with a start. Two afternoon newspapers began printing daily radio-pages and weekly radio magazine sections. Department stores installed radio-phone departments and sold instruments while radio music rang thru the store. Manufacturers of instruments were swamped with orders. Half a dozen big cities east of the Mississippi river were broadcasting musical programs and speeches every night.

Unless the public instinct, which has been right heretofore, is wrong this time, the radio-phone is destined to make a big place for itself.

ORDERS ISSUED BY UNION HEADS

ance of way men in the country probably will be made late today. E. F. Grable, international president of the brotherhood of maintenance of way employees and railroad shop laborers announced.

Labor Board Takes a Hand.
CHICAGO, June 29.—The United States Railroad Labor Board today cited the national officers of the six shopcrafts unions, the railroad executives now meeting here, and the officers of four other railroad unions, to appear before the board tomorrow afternoon in an inquiry into "the threatened interruption of traffic."

In addition to the shopmen, whose strike order already has been issued, the four other unions cited, now taking a strike vote, are the clerks, maintenance of way, stationary firemen and oilers and signal men.

B. M. Jewell, leader of the shopmen, today served formal notice on the railroad labor board that a strike call had been issued "on all railroad and Pullman shops operating department local lodges of the six shopcrafts."

The meeting of the railroad executives and heads of the ten unions was set for two o'clock tomorrow by the labor board, when the formal notice of the strike call was received from the shopmen, announcing the date for the walkout as next Saturday at ten a. m.

B. M. Jewell, declared he personally would attend the meeting called by the labor board "only under protest" and that he could not speak for the six other presidents of unions until he had consulted them. The several of them are said to be on their way to their headquarters to direct strike operations.

Men's starched white collars were unknown before 1825.

College Campus

Considering the fact that old Apollo has been on a somewhat desiccating rampage of late, and that quantities of perspiration have been exacted without in any way calming his ardor, the morale of the student body has been exceptionally good. Classes are so large that, while every room is thoroughly ventilated at all times, the lack of wild western breeze, to which we are so accustomed, is easily noticeable. Ice cream cones, at the sorority stands, have ascended to a crest of tremendous popularity while classes are changing rooms.

Whoop-la. Holidays! Faint and conflicting rumors as to the length of the Fourth of July holidays were negotiating the College halls this morning. However, no definite information has crept forth from the president's sanctum as yet.

East Central's campus should be the source of much civic pride, not only to the institution, but the whole city as well. Consummate care has been taken to make our college grounds among the most beautiful in the state, and the effort expended has not been in vain; the carefully arranged flower beds, the well-pruned trees casting their inviting shade upon the evenly mowed grass, with the comfortable benches scattered about, and the general atmosphere of cool, delightful quietude, present an umbrous vista refreshingly fair to look upon. The college officials should be highly commended for their diligence in insisting that East Central have a beautiful campus.

Pontotoc county, with by far the largest number of students in East Central college, organized in a meeting at one o'clock last Tuesday afternoon in the college auditorium. Several hundred students attended the first annual meeting of the county club. Officers were elected rector. In outlining the plans for the year's work were outlined.

James Hodges called the meeting to order and presided at the election of officers. J. L. German was elected president, Oscar Kimbrough vice-president, Mrs. Herbert Felix, secretary, Oscar Parker, director. In outlining the plans for the club's work, the chief business discussed was the promotion of interests for East Central.

Social affairs were not forgotten and a committee was appointed to select a date, place and make plans for the first annual picnic. Those appointed on the committee were A. D. Bolton chairman, E. W. White, H. P. Butcher, Mrs. Herbert Felix and Ida Saltin Williams.

The Mavericks, an organization composed of students living outside this county, held a picnic at the City Lake Wednesday evening from six-thirty to nine. A large number of students were present, and an enjoyable time was had by all in picnicking, swimming and playing games.

FINAL ARGUMENTS IN GORDON MURDER CASE UNDER WAY

(By the Associated Press)

STILLWATER, Okla., June 29.—Final arguments in the trial of Earl Gordon of Miami, Okla., for the murder of Beckham Cobb, Birmingham, Ala., a fellow student at the Oklahoma A. and M. College, were completed shortly before one o'clock today and the case was given to the jury. The jurymen were taken at once to a restaurant for lunch, after which they are to start deliberations.

STILLWATER, June 29.—Final arguments were begun this morning when the trial of Earl Gordon of Miami, for the slaying of Beckham Cobb, of Birmingham, Ala., resumed in district court. Cobb and Gordon, both world war veterans, were attending Oklahoma A. and M. college as a vocational training student at the time of the killing.

Frank Nesbitt, Miami attorney, was allotted the final plea for the defense and C. Suman, special prosecutor representing Cobb's widow, was ready to follow him.

WELL KNOWN EDUCATORS VISITING THE COLLEGE

Prof. T. T. Montgomery of Chickasha and Prof. Paul Laird of Durant were at the college today, visiting and examining the work being done. Prof. Montgomery is superintendent of the schools of Chickasha, and is also a member of the State Board of Education. He is a great friend of the teachers colleges.

Prof. Laird has been a member of the faculty at the college at Durant for many years and has been an Ada visitor often.

These men speak highly of the work of Dr. Linscheid and his co-workers are doing, and Prof. Montgomery is anxious to see the college get more buildings.

Damage Reported in Coal Fields of Colorado Today

(By the Associated Press)

DENVER, June 29.—Two mine tipples were burned, one Colorado mine flooded and two railroad bridges burned in the Colorado coal fields in Boulder and Huerfano counties during the night, according to reports to the Colorado state rangers to headquarters here today. It was announced by Col. Patrick J. Hamrock, state adjutant general.

Governor O. S. Shoup who was in Colorado Springs this morning, is on his way to Denver for a conference with adjutant general to determine what measures are to be taken. Col. Hamrock stated.

Reader Takes Newer Form of Iron—Feels Years Younger

"Six weeks ago I saw a special offer in the paper telling how thousands of people grow old in looks and energy long before they are really old in years, because, as examinations by physicians have shown, an enormous number of people do not have enough iron in their blood. I have been taking Nuxated Iron for two weeks; the results are simply astounding. The roses have come back in my lips and cheeks, and I can conscientiously say that I feel ten years younger."

The above is a typical hypothetical case showing the results that have been achieved by a great many people since we started this "satisfaction or money back" offer on Nuxated Iron. We will make you the same guarantee. If, after taking the two week's treatment of Nuxated Iron, you do not feel and look years younger, we will promptly refund your money. Call at once for a bottle of Nuxated Iron at Gwin & Mays Drug Store.—Adv.

MEETING AT CHURCH OF CHRIST GROWS IN INTEREST

The meetings at the Church of Christ on east Main street continue with growing interest. Services at 10 a. m. and 8:15 p. m. each day. The morning service is devoted to discussing the principles of the New Testament church.

Subject for the evening service: "The First Gospel Sermon." Everybody is invited to attend these services. Bro. Sewell is a plain earnest and fearless proclaimer of the old Jerusalem Gospel. It is worth your time to hear him.

Keep Pace With Evolution

Darwin declared that the human race was merely an evolution of the monkey tribe. Some people agree with him. Others do not.

But there is no denying that even within the memory of most of us, there has been considerable of an evolution in the human mode of living. And today, this evolution is buzzing along faster than ever.

There has never been a time when conditions changed so rapidly—when life bettered itself so consistently. New comforts and conveniences are coming in all the time. And the rapidity with which they are invented and put before us vitally affects us all.

To take advantage of these things, you must keep yourself informed. You must know not only what they are, but also how much they cost and where and how to get them.

The only way you can know this is to be a regular reader of the advertisements.

Advertisements tell of all that the world is doing to make you more comfortable, your work easier, your methods better, your clothing and food problems less irksome. They tell you how you can save time—and effort—and money in the selection of the things that make life worth while.
